IN SOUTH PARIS

Statements of South Paris Citizens Are Always of Interest to Our Readers.

To many of our readers the streets of South Paris are almost as familiar as those of our own town, and we are naturally interested to read of happenings there. The following report from a well-known and respected resident will be helpful to numbers of men and women here in Norway.

"I suffered from pains in the small of my back and if I stooped, it was hard for me to straighten," says Irving Merrill, stationary engineer, of Alpine St., South Paris, Me. "I noticed that the kidney secretions were unnatural and irregular in passage. I got Doan's Kidney Pills and after I had used three boxes, the trouble had gone. I am glad to confirm by previous public endorsement of this remedy."

Price 50c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Merrill had, Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.

PIGEON HILL.

William H. Conant gave a very interesting talk, Monday, Feb. 22d, at Joe Jones' house, on the advantages of co-operation for the farmers in selling their apples. There were present about twenty of the leading apple growers of this section, who listened very interestedly to the methods, which Mr. Conant described had proved successful in the Oxford County Bear Association, of which he is a member. Mr. Conant illustrated how in any successful business the promoters must rush, hustle, boom, advertise their stock and back it with first class stock, just as represented, by a story of the old "darker" who, being very religious and also very fond of chickens, would pray to "de good Lord" to send him a chicken. He never got it but when he prayed for "de good Lord" to send him after one he always got a good one. Officers were elected pro tem with the view in joining an association in the near future.

Oxford Grange, No. 4, gave a very pleasant social in their new hall at Welchville. Readings, songs by Marion Fuller and Richard Tyner, instrumental music by Geo. Tyner were enjoyed by all. Jones' ice cream was on sale, also popcorn, apples, free. Then games and old fashioned dances were enjoyed by both young and old. Over fifteen dollars was cleared which will go towards buying dishes. The Grange is an order old and respected, it was the chief promoter in starting the rural free delivery, is not individual, it opens wide its doors to father, mother, brother and sister, and bids them welcome. By so doing, our young members are always sure of the companionship of those who are near and dear.

2 Seconds, 2 Drops—Corns Vanish!
For everybody with corns, there is in every drug store in the land one of the real wonders of the world, and that's "GETS-IT" for corns! It's the first and only corn-cure ever known that removes any and every corn or callus without fail, without fussing with thick bandages, toe harnesses, corn-swalling salves, irritating ointments! It's applied in 2 seconds—bing, bang—2 drops the work is done, the corn shrivels up, your corn agony ends and the corn leaves forever! All the limping, the pain, the trouble of having to wear shoes over screaming corns, the danger of blood poison from making them bleed by using knives, razors and scissors are gone at last! "GETS-IT" is the new way, the sure, simple, painless way. Try it for corns, calluses, warts and bunions. "GETS-IT" is sold by druggists everywhere, 25c a bottle, or sent direct by E. A Wonderful Healing Influence in Kidney Troubles.

A year and a half ago I was taken with a severe attack of kidney trouble that pained me to such an extent that morphine had to be given me. Was attended by a doctor who pronounced it as Lithia Water. I took Lithia Water and Tablets for some time, later having some Swamp-Root in the house I decided to try it and felt much relieved. While taking the second bottle commenced to pass gravel in urine until I had passed in all at least a half dozen or more and have not suffered the slightest pain and in all have taken one bottle and a half and feel very grateful to Swamp-Root.

Yours very truly,
H. W. SPINKS,
Camp Hill, Ala.
Personally appeared before me this 16th day of August, 1909, H. W. Spinks, who subscribed the above statement and made oath that the same is true in substance and in fact.

NORTH WATERFORD.

Martha A. Bisbee.

Passed to the higher life, after a short illness at her home in this place, 21st ult., Martha A. Bisbee, aged 81 years.

She was in her usual health until within one week of her death. She suffered a severe paralytic shock and was unconscious until the end. She was born Oct. 21, 1833.

She married William H. Hamlin Oct. 4th, 1854, by whom she had three children, J. Henry Hamlin, Annie F. Hamlin who died May 29th, 1859, and Ella Hamlin. She married the second time Mar. 23, 1870, David P. Bisbee, by whom she had one child, Scott V. Bisbee, who died Feb. 4th, 1896.

Ella M. Lebrooke of North Waterford and J. Henry Hamlin of Woodford; a niece, Sadie M. Rowe of Waterford, and nephew, Harry Rowe of Worcester, Mass. She was a charter member of Bear Mountain Grange, South Waterford, and of the Grange of Norway and Waterford Grange of North Waterford, and charter member of the L. R. C. of North Waterford.

She was kindly cared for by her daughter and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Lebrooke. Her son, Henry Hamlin of Woodford was with her until the end and kindly assisted in the care of his mother. Her many friends did all in their power to assist the family for which they feel very grateful. Brother Miller of South Paris University church spoke words of comfort to the bereaved family. She was laid to rest Feb. 23d, in Bisbee town cemetery.

An obituary poem was written by L. L. Shedd.

IN MEMORIAM.

Mrs. Martha A. Bisbee, late of No. Waterford. Our mother, whose memory dear we hold, Was taken by the angels away, And clad in a garment, that washeth not old, In a land of continual day.

Still in fancy we see her smiling, Standing by the open door, With her sunlight on her falling, As it fell in days of yore.

Smiling in a heavenly portal, She will greet us, one by one, Clothed in snowy robes immortal, Shining brighter than the sun.

For all those deeds so kindly done, For more than eighty years, hath won A crown, where love is life.

Soft her footsteps, when the weary Called her to a bed of pain, Low her voice, with words so cheery, Like a song, with sweet refrain.

There's a pictured face of mother, Hanging on the parlor wall, But the memories that we cherish Are the dearest ones of all.

Then why should we so sadly weep, There's peace upon her brow; We know that the guardian angels keep Watch and ward, over her now.

Now may winter's snowy mantle fall, Gath'ring round thee soft and warm, Making beauty everywhere, Keeping out the cold and storm.

May the song birds in the spring time, Linger round thy place of rest, And the summer, and the sunshine, Grow the flowers you loved the best.

And when autumn leaves are falling In their beauty on the ground, May we hear the soft wind calling Them together o'er thy mound.

A squad of 24 have sent in their names to Coach Charles Dwyer, as candidates for the team this year, making one of the largest squads in years to report for opening practice. From this number Coach Dwyer will try to develop one of the usual fast aggregations.

Included in this squad are just two veterans from last year's great nine that won the honors after one of the hardest fights in the history of the Maine preparatory school. The two veterans around which the team this year will be built are Capt. Walter Cross, the big bat stop, and Joe Nedeau, the hard hitting second sacker.

An all-day meeting of Hebron Grange was held Feb. 24th. Guests from West Minot and East Hebron were present, also E. H. Libby of Auburn. Among the interesting features of the program were the report of the Lecturers' Convention at Bangor, a talk by Mr. Libby, a paper by Grace Bumpus, and a farce, "Mrs. Jones' Afternoon Tea."

Z. L. Packard, W. R. C. held an interesting meeting, Feb. 20th.

Two young men, representatives of the Y. M. C. A., were in town over Sunday. Mr. Millman of Bates College spoke in favor of the convention at Northfield during the summer vacation. Mr. Miller of Bowdoin spoke on the war situation. It is not a higher education that is needed, for where is there a more highly educated country than Germany, but more Christianity.

H. K. Stearns is spending a few days in Bangor.

Mrs. P. V. Everett is improving slowly. Nasseb Malout of Boston spent the week-end with Mrs. Ellen Gilman.

Mrs. E. E. Hutchinson has been spending the past two weeks with friends in Auburn.

H. B. Startevant of Waltham called on friends here last week.

The Ladies' Circle held a meeting at the church, Mar. 2d, and served dinner. The dinner committee were: Mrs. Rosa Richardson, Mrs. Nellie McLehner, Mrs. Ida Glover, Mrs. Inez Hutchinson, Mrs. Blanche Merrill.

WEST SUMMER. Mrs. Eunice Staples is visiting friends and relatives in Saco and Portland.

Rupert Robbins has finished work for Lembrock Station of Hartford, and returned home.

Annie Barrows, who has been ill for the past week with the prevailing epidemic, cold, was able to return to Buckfield, Monday, for the purpose of resuming her studies at the high school.

Mrs. John Foster and little son of Bryant Pond have been recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Freeman Farrar.

Tuesday, James Tuell had the misfortune to fall upon the ice and so badly cut one of his eyelids that it was necessary for his physician to take five stitches in it.

In spite of the pouring rain and bad walking, the streets being glare ice, the excellent dinner served by the Ladies' Aid of the Baptist church on Feb. 28th, was largely attended. On Wednesday, Mar. 10th, another dinner, which will be the last one of the season, will be served.

Saturday, near East Summer, James Gammon, driving a high spirited horse, collided with Arthur Bonney, capsizing him, his wife and two little daughters, but fortunately not injuring any of them. In the upset, Mr. Bonney's new sleigh was badly scratched and one thigh broken.

March 12th, the Ladies Aid of the Universalist church will give a Masquerade ball, followed by a box supper.

Word has reached here that at the annual meeting of the Mystic Valley Telephone Co., A. G. Farrar was elected president. The other officers are H. E. Pulsifer and O. G. Chandler, directors, and E. S. Tuell, clerk and treasurer.

Rather Her Baby.

It was a summer hotel, and the baby, being warm and fretful, cried.

"Tut! Tut! We can't disturb our neighbors this way," the fond father said, taking the child in his arms. "Let me sing him to sleep."

He sang, and straightway came a knock at the door and these words:

"There's a sick lady next door, and if it's all the same to you, would you mind letting the baby cry instead of singing to it?"

THE FUEL VALUE OF WOOD.

The fuel value of two pounds of wood is roughly equivalent to that of one pound of coal. This is given as the result of certain calculations now being made in the forest service laboratory, which shows also about how many cords of certain kinds of wood are required to obtain an amount of heat equal to that in a ton of coal.

Certain kinds of wood, such as hickory, oak, beech, birch, hard maple, ash, elm, locust, long leaf pine and cherry, have fairly high heat values, and only one cord is required to equal one ton of good coal.

It takes a cord and a half of short leaf pine, hemlock, red gum, Douglas fir, spruce, and soft maple to equal a ton of coal, and two cords of cedar, redwood, poplar, catalpa, Norway pine, cypress, basswood, spruce and white pine.

Equal weights of dry, non-resinous woods, however, are said to have practically the same heat value regardless of species, and as a consequence it can be stated as a general proposition that the heavier the wood the more heat to the cord. Weight for weight, however, there is very little difference between various species; the average heat for all that have been calculated is 4,000 calories, or heat units, per kilogram. A kilogram of resin will develop 9,400 heat units, or about twice the average for wood. As a consequence, resinous woods have a greater heat value per pound than non-resinous woods, and this increased value varies of course, with the resin content.

The available heat value of a cord of wood depends on many different factors. It has a relation not only to the amount of resin it contains, but to the amount of moisture present. Furthermore, cords vary as to the amount of solid wood they contain, even when they are of the standard dimensions and occupy 128 cubic feet of space. A certain proportion of this space is made up of air spaces between the sticks, and this air space may be considerable in a cord made of twisted, crooked and knotty sticks. Out of the 128 cubic feet a fair average of solid wood is about 80 cubic feet.

It is pointed out, however, that heat value is not the only test of usefulness in fuel wood, and since 95 per cent of all wood used for fuel is consumed for domestic purposes, largely in farm houses, such factors as rapidity of burning and ease of lighting are important.

Section of the county has its favored woods, and these are said to be, in general, the right ones to use. Hickory, of the non-resinous woods, has the highest fuel value per unit volume of wood and has other advantages. It burns readily, and, as the housewives say, holds the heat. The oaks come next, followed by beech, birch and maple. Pine has a relatively low heat value per unit volume, but has other advantages. It ignites readily and gives out a quick hot flame, but one that soon goes down. This makes it a favorite with rural housekeepers as a summer wood, because it is particularly adapted for hot days in the kitchen.

The fuel qualities of chestnut adapt it particularly to work in brass foundries, where it gives just the required amount of heat, and it is therefore in favor. Coastwise vessels in Florida pay twice as much for Florida buttonwood as for any other, because it burns with an even heat and with a minimum amount of smoke and ash.

The principal disadvantage of the resinous pines is their oily black smoke.

They Would Sprawl In the Snow Bank.

Daddy's Bedtime Story — Bears and Their "Surprise."

THERE were a number of little Teddy bears once," said daddy, "who had to give a 'winter sports' party, as they called it. They invited the polar bears, the hairy eared bears and the black bear family.

They spent a great deal of time deciding on the sports they would have. Of course the polar bears were almost too heavy and awkward to do much else beside sliding down hill, but they decided that would be good fun, as all bears like coasting. They were going to have skating races, too, and finally they were going to have a big surprise which they would not say a word about and acted very mysteriously about it.

At last the day came for the party, and all the bears arrived right on time. In fact, a good many came ahead of time, so eager were they for the party.

"At first they all coasted down the hill on single sleds and double sleds, and they'd call out in their deep, gruff voices—something we could never understand, but which they understood perfectly, as it was their language—'Clear the course; clear the course!' and out of the way they would steer. At one side the Teddy bears had built a big snow bank, and if any of the bears didn't steer straight they would go right into the snowbank and of course upset and sprawl about in the snow, which added a great deal of merriment.

"After they'd coasted for awhile they had skating races on the pond. And who do you think won? Why, one of the young polar bears, for although they're so heavy and big, they are excellent skaters.

"And now came the time for the 'surprise.' All the bears followed the Teddy bears to a place not far from the hill, and what do you suppose they saw?"

"What?" asked Daddy eagerly.

"They saw," continued daddy, "a lot of snow bears. Instead of making snow men, as you and Evelyn do, they had made bears out of the snow, and they certainly did look very funny. All the bears were delighted and jumped around in great glee and praised the Teddy bears for the wonderful snow bears they had made. They were so well made that they would have almost seemed to have been alive had they not been so very white. The Teddy bears, as you can imagine, were delighted with the success of their 'surprise' and their party.

"After they had all had delicious refreshments all the bears shook paws and thanked the Teddy bears for 'the nicest party they'd ever been to.'

"I can tell you the Teddy bears were pleased, and even the snow bears seemed to have wider grins."

Raspberry Bavarian Cream.

Raspberry Bavarian cream is a hot day dessert which does not require freezing. To make it soak half a package of gelatin for two hours in half a cupful of cold water. In the meantime mash a quart of raspberries with a cupful of sugar and let them stand together an hour. Whip a pint of cream to a stiff froth. Strain the raspberry juice and pulp free from seeds through a wire strainer. Pour half a cupful of boiling water on the gelatin and strain that on the juice. Put the cream in a porcelain basin and stand it in a pan of water with ice in it. Beat the liquid and when it is as thick as custard stir in the whipped cream. Pour the whole into a two quart mold and put it in the icebox to harden. Serve with whipped cream.

Pineapple Sponge.

Soak one-half package of gelatin in one-half cupful of cold water, dissolve over steam, add one cupful of grated pineapple and the juice of half a small lemon and sweeten to taste. Stir over a low fire until the mixture begins to thicken. Fold in the stiffly beaten whites of six eggs, turn into a wetting mold and place on ice until firm. Unmold and serve with the center filled with whipped cream, slightly sweetened and flavored with a few drops of vanilla.

Flies of every species and the annoyances they cause man and beast as well as their capacities for spreading disease are described in detail in the year book of the department of agriculture.

Horseflies, gadflies and earflies, the botfly, the hornfly, the housefly and the stable fly have been made the subject of careful study by the department of agriculture experts and are certain to be more feared by citizens when the damage which they are capable of causing is better understood and appreciated by the public.

To the group of insects known as horseflies, gadflies and earflies is attributed the transmission of certain blood diseases of live stock. Among the most important of these is the deadly disease known as anthrax.

Bottles burrow into the flesh of horses and cattle, while the hornfly, one of the most injurious insects in the country, also confines its attack principally to live stock. The losses sustained are entirely due to the voraciousness and irritation produced by the bites of the fly and by extraction of blood.

The stable fly, a close relative of the housefly, is distinguished from the latter by its prominent piercing mouth parts. All animals, including man, are attacked by this insect.

The best way to prevent the stable fly, the government authorities point out, is to destroy the breeding places of the insects. Refuse should not be allowed to collect in stables, while structures in which horses and cows are housed should be screened the same as dwellings, it is stated.

Vacant Lot Gardening in Toronto.

Toronto has joined the ranks of the cities in which there is an active vacant lot gardening movement. Over thirty parcels of vacant land in the business section of the city have been loaned to the Playgrounds association and prepared for gardening by the Playmen's association of York town.

The start of the new venture was celebrated by a dinner to the Playmen on the evening of that day. Seeds and implements have been promised so that the children will have everything necessary for successful gardening.

HORSE POWER IN THE HOME.

A horse power of electricity is equal to 746 watts which, at a rate of 10 cents a kilowatt (or 1,000 watts) is about seven and a half cents an hour. If a woman is "working like a horse" around a large home supplied with electricity for lighting purposes without the knowledge that she could hire an "electrical horse" to do it for about 75 cents a day of 10 hours. But only a fraction of a horse power is necessary for household tasks.

A one-sixth horsepower electric motor, equal to about "one man power," is amply large enough. This motor can be used for a wide variety of work at a cost of a little over a cent an hour. No woman can afford to beat carpets and rugs, sweep, dust, turn the washing machine and wringer or pedal the sewing machine for one cent an hour.

Electricity is particularly suitable to the operation of the mechanical helps which have constantly tended to make housekeeping an easy occupation. The electric motor, a safe, simple, compact, powerful bit of mechanism, has proved the cleanest, most economical and reliable servant that has ever found employment in the household. By way of illustrating this point a little further it may be said that it is possible to obtain from an electric motor occupying the space of an eight-inch cube the power of one horse. Much less power is required, of course, is required to drive any of the different machines which are used in the home. A sixth or an eighth of that energy is sufficient. The woman who "works like a horse," as the phrase has it, in washing and cleaning in the old way, will welcome the little motor as a clean, quick, and handy substitute for her own muscular "horse power."

Some of the favorite uses of the electric motor in the home are for washing and wringing clothes, freezing ice cream, running the sewing machine, operating vacuum cleaners, chopping food, sharpening knives, grinding coffee, polishing silverware, beating eggs, whipping cream and the like. It is a little motor, by the way, that while the blades of an electric fan to cool and refresh us. On wash-day the electric motor is at its best, perhaps, as a labor-saver. Whether the mistress of the home does the washing herself or hires someone else to do it, the household is more or less upset while it is in progress. By the electric way, however, the clothes are put to soak in soapy water over night.

In the morning they are thrown into the electric washer, some soap added, and the motor started by the turn of a switch. After 10 or 15 minute's work without attention, the motor is stopped by another turn of the switch and the clothes are transferred by passing them through the wringer (driven by the same motor) into a rinsing water. If the washer be emptied, refilled with fresh water, the clothes replaced in it and the motor again set running for five minutes longer, this rinsing need not be done by hand. A final wringing by the power-wringer and the clothes are ready to hang on the lines. The motor, it will be seen, has done all the hard work.

There is no cleaning so thorough as vacuum cleaning. Every woman who has this "dirt consumer" will testify to that. It gathers all the dust from floors, walls, pictures and hangings, and obviates the dust-cloth and broom. There is no need of dusting after using a vacuum cleaner. Unlike the broom, the vacuum cleaner seizes and imprisons the dust in a receptacle from which it cannot escape until it is ready to be cast into the furnace or the ash-pit.

With the dust go also germs. Sweeping with a broom is largely a process of transferring dirt from one spot to another. Cleaning with a vacuum apparatus means the elimination of the dust from the house. Cleaning floors and walls is not the only task that a vacuum cleaner will perform. It will take the dust from mattresses, upholstery, and clothing. At least one woman has found it useful in cleaning her pet dog and its use in grooming horses is common.

Sewing on a machine which has to be run by treading adds a very trying physical labor to the strain on the eyes. An electric motor relieves the seamstress of this wearisome part of the work and gives her a chance to take a more comfortable position at the machine. With this opportunity to give her whole attention to "feeding," she can sew at least twice as fast as when she must also do the treading. The pressure of the foot is all that is needed to start or stop the motor.

Without ever having taken the trouble to inquire, many women believe that the cost of current necessary to the operation of these different appliances puts this "electric assistance" beyond their means. Two cents will pay for an hour's use of either an electric washer or an electric vacuum cleaner. A switch is worth of current will make 20,000 stitches on a motor-driven sewing machine.

No more experience is necessary to operate one of these little motors than is requisite for starting and stopping an electric fan. A switch is always handy, so that the motor may be set going or brought to a stop at will. With this little worker at her command any woman can greatly diminish the period of her daily labor and correspondingly increase her time for social and intellectual pleasures.

Pig Ailments.

Cough in young pigs is very often caused by dust in the bedding. Dry short-chaffed straw is most likely to cause trouble in this way. The cough often ends in fatal pneumonia. The cough may also be due to exposure of the pig to damp sleeping places. Such cases should be removed. Thumps in young pigs is induced by overfeeding and lack of exercise. If both the mother and pigs are made to take abundant exercise daily trouble such as this will be unknown.

Selling the Cured.

The cured should be spread out thinly over the bottom of the vat and the salt put on in at least three applications. Each time it should be evenly distributed over the surface. After each sprinkling the cured should be stirred with curd forks. If the salt is applied too rapidly the outside of the small pieces harden, and absorption is hindered.

With apples selling in English markets for four to five dollars a barrel, and buyers boasting of their profits, I wonder how those growers feel who listened to the cry of "No sale." "No chance for Maine apples." From these self-same buyers in September, from these self-same pick their fruit? When we awake to the absolute necessity for a storage house, and provide the same, there will be no uselessly haste in selling, and the scare season will be over. To this we must come in order that growers may be prepared to take advantage of market conditions and realize a fair price for their apples.

Public Library 200
Fire department 1,300
Water and hydrant rental 1,300

It was voted to appropriate the income of the water system to defray the expenses of maintenance and pay interest on water bonds and water loans.

It was voted to charge for water for manufacturing purposes, livery stables, garages, or any place where a large quantity of water is used: Minimum charge for any meter, $10, with an allowance of fifty thousand gallons of water's users of 50,000 to 500,000 gallons, $0.16 per 1000 gallons with the minimum charge of $10.00. Users of 500,000 to 1,000,000 gallons, $0.12 per 1000 gallons with the minimum amount above 1,000,000 gallons, $0.09 per 1000 gallons with the minimum charge of $120.00.

Billings' mill, also one at Church street; and it was voted to authorize the assessors to find out the cost of installing a fire alarm system and report at a future meeting.

Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Morton entertained a party of four tables, Thursday evening.

In spite of the bad weather Wednesday and Thursday, there was a goodly number who patronized the Good Cheer fair. Many articles were left over and were sold again at the monthly supper Tuesday evening.

The comedy drama "His Last Chance" was presented Thursday and Friday evenings at the Grange Hall, in connection with the Good Cheer fair. The play was well presented and every one did his or her best.

Shaw, Harold Briggs, Edw. Barnes, Ashway Crocker, Ernest Crocker, Viola Walton, Lena Frink and A. L. Holmes.

John A. Scott is soon to go to Pembroke, Ontario, and with some other men will start a saw mill.

His place at the Mason Mill, Co's. will be taken by E. H. Mosure of Athol, Mass.

Mr. Mosure has been superintendent of the N. D. Cass Co. at Athol. He is expected to bring in a new saw this week.

Lester Twitchell, who has purchased one half the interest in his father's farm, Walter E. Twitchell, is having a rent fixed up on the second floor of the house.

A new floor is soon to be laid at the school house. The present floor was laid when roller skating came around for the first time.

Foot passengers are not allowed on the railroad bridge since the guard has been removed. This has been a favorite place for many in the early spring when it is the first place the snow leaves, and is a fine place for a walk below the village.

Mrs. Lou Dougherty has charge of Mrs. Della C. Smiley's millinery store while she is in Boston.

Clayton M. Cobb, who works in a store at Lacombe, N. H., is spending a vacation with her mother, Mrs. Berry, on Gothic street.

Prize and entertainment will be held Friday evening, Mar. 5th, at Deering Memorial Church. The entertainment will consist of a musical program by local talent, assisted by Alice Barden of East Paris, with Mrs. George I. Burnham, accompanist. Helen Mansfield of Lewiston will be the reader for the evening.

Mrs. Lucy Dean, who has been spending a few days with her brother, James Thibault, has returned Friday, accompanied by Mrs. Emma Tremaine, who is visiting friends near the river.

The annual business meeting of the Ladies' Aid of the Methodist church was held Thursday afternoon, with Mrs. C. T. Ware, her home at Market Square.

Mrs. C. W. Carril of Market Square, gave her a substantial check to cover the loss. When all was ready the nurse was introduced to the patient by Mrs. Hough.

"Why, mother," he said, "I thought you were to get a man, not a boy?" "You don't need a man of strength. The butler will do everything for you. You are lonely, so give you your medicine, and read to you."

"Very well, let him begin at once." "What kind of reading do you like, sir?" asked the nurse, very meekly. Barton smiled. "You must be pretty young. Your voice hasn't changed yet," he said; then added in contrastive story, "I want a blood and thunder."

Philippa went out of the room with a history of the buccanniers of the Spanish main. Drawing a chair beside the invalid's couch she seated herself and began to read. She had not read long before Barton stopped her.

"That's no voice with which to read aloud, Philippa. No pirate would ever put it to sleep to walk the plank like that. Put it this way"—and in as measured a voice as he could command: "Read that again."

"Out there—every one of you!" "My voice isn't very strong yet. I suppose it will be stronger when I am older," said the nurse.

"You need developing. Look in the closet and you'll find a couple of fells. Remember the pirates; I'm tired of them."

Philippa closed the book, laid it aside and, going to the closet, found the fells standing in a corner. She brought them to the invalid, who took one, leaving the other with her.

"Now stand off there," he said, "and I'll give you a lesson in fencing."

"But, sir, are you strong enough?" "I'm going to do my part in bed. Put the pillows behind me."

She propped him up as he desired, and he bent his foot above his head, after the fashion of fencers beginning a bout. Then he told her to see if she could touch him with the button of her foil.

"Don't you think, sir," she protested, "that it would be better for me to read to you?"

"No; it's your business to amuse me, and you must amuse me; not bore me."

"But the doctor," he wouldn't allow it.

"The doctor be hanged; he's not here to stop it."

Philippa made several inoffensive thrusts, rather endeavoring not to touch the patient than to do so.

"See here, young man," cried Barton: "do you call that fencing? I want you to do your best to put the button there, and he tapped his left breast with his finger."

Philippa, seeing that nothing would satisfy him except her doing her best, set to work to touch the spot indicated, but found it impossible. Although reduced by illness, he was too quick for her.

"Now, I'll try you," he said. "But my hand is not so steady as it should be, and I'm afraid I'll hurt you. You'll find a mask in the closet. Bring it out."

Philippa brought the mask, and he told her to put it on. She did so, and, again taking up her foil, placed herself on the defensive. Barton had no difficulty in getting behind her guard and placing the button of his foil wherever he liked. They were in the midst of lunges and parries when the door opened and Mrs. Hough ushered in the doctor. Philippa turned quickly, lowered the point of her foil to the floor, bent her head and stood like a culprit ready to receive a reprimand.

"So this is the nurse you have provided for your son?" said the doctor to Mrs. Hough.

"He's a dandy," said the patient. "I don't believe he ever took a lesson in his life, and yet he came very near pinching me several times."

But the doctor refused to be placated.

"Madam," he said to the mother, "is this young man a professional nurse?" "He is."

"Discharge him at once."

"Not on your life," cried the patient. "Any educated nurse," continued the doctor, "knows better than to risk a patient's life by permitting him to take such violent exercise."

"Permitting?" sneered Barton. "Do you think that strapping could lord it over me? Not much."

"Either discharge the nurse," said the doctor resolutely, "or I shall withdraw from the case."

"The nurse were be discharged," replied Barton. Whereupon the doctor left the room, followed by the fond mother, who was quite beside herself at the trouble she had made in getting her son a man nurse.

She made no attempt at an explanation to the doctor, being too agitated and not knowing what to do. She went back to the sickroom, to find the nurse had vacated it, while her son was evidently no worse for his exercise.

"Mother," he said, "let old sawbones ro. I like this little chap you've given me, and before he goes away I'll make a man of him."

"Oh, dear," cried the mother, which under the circumstances was as appropriate as anything she could say. "Send Philippa back to me," Barton went on. "He's a bit cut up at being blamed."

Mrs. Hough was ready to do anything in her power and, going out, came back dragging Philippa with her.

The Invalid

He Was Very Hard to Nurse

By F. A. MITCHEL

Barton Hough was educated abroad, and, after having attended schools till he was eighteen, universities till he was twenty-six and taken post graduate courses till he was twenty-nine, his mother thought it time that he returned to America.

It is not to be inferred that Mr. Hough came out with great knowledge from all this training. He had become accustomed to European life and remained in the universities for the purpose of prolonging it. The only thing in which he had become proficient was the use of the small sword, which he learned at a German university.

However, when he had finished his last postgraduate course he concluded to take a rest in Paris, where he remained a year. Then his father died, and he felt it incumbent upon him to go home. He found his mother very lonely, and she begged him to stay with her. He promised to do so, but before long it became apparent that he was sighing for those places where people work a few hours a day or not at all and enjoy themselves the rest of the time.

In order to get her son chained down she desired that he should marry. Unfortunately for this plan Barton's family associates abroad had not been such as to inspire confidence in women. He had been much pleased at one time with a Russian countess. But she turned out to be an adventuress and the sweet intercourse between them had turned to bitterness. An English girl, Lady Angela Courtney, had been his next flame, but she had married a nobleman of her own country, leaving the American in the lurch.

Mr. Hough, forgetting that "one swallow does not make a summer"—or two in his case—came to consider all women bereft of any sense of honor, and he would have nothing to do with them, or, rather, he would trust none of them. As a matter of fact, that was out of the question.

One day Barton fell ill. His mother was not strong enough to nurse him, but he would have no one else. Finally when worn out she suggested a trained nurse. The young man was so enraged at the suggestion that his mother desisted. Finally in order to relieve her he consented that she might bring in a man to help her.

Mrs. Hough knew a young woman who had become a trained nurse. This girl, Adele Trevor, the good lady sent for, and on her arrival said to her:

"Philippa, my son is ill and I must have some one to take care of him. What salary do you usually get?"

"Twenty-five dollars a week."

"I will pay you double that sum, but I have a requirement to make of you. You must personate a man."

The girl hesitated, but she needed money, and $50 a week was a temptation to her. Besides it was understood that her duties would be rather to entertain the patient than to nurse him. She accepted the position and Mrs. Hough sent her to a tailor to be outfitted. It became necessary to cut a wig for her hair, but her employer gave her a substantial check to cover the loss. When all was ready the nurse was introduced to the patient by Mrs. Hough.

"Why, mother," he said, "I thought you were to get a man, not a boy?" "You don't need a man of strength. The butler will do everything for you. You are lonely, so give you your medicine, and read to you."

"Very well, let him begin at once." "What kind of reading do you like, sir?" asked the nurse, very meekly. Barton smiled. "You must be pretty young. Your voice hasn't changed yet," he said; then added in contrastive story, "I want a blood and thunder."

ANNUAL BOARD OF TRADE BANQUET.

The fourth annual banquet of the Norway Board of Trade was held at the Grange Hall, Thursday evening, Feb. 25th, with an attendance of some over a hundred.

At 7.30 an excellent banquet was served by the ladies of the Congregational church in the dining hall. The menu consisted of grapefruit with Marshmallow cherries, mashed potatoes, cold roast chicken with dressing, cold tongue, cold pressed meat, salads of all kinds, hot rolls, coffee, celery, ice cream, cake, fruit, salted peanuts and after dinner mints.

After the supper the guests returned to the upper hall where the evening's speeches took place. The chairman of the banquet committee, B. N. Swett, called the gathering together and called on Frank Kimball, president of the Board of Trade, to preside. Mr. Kimball, in his opening remarks referred to the terrible war that was going on and that he would call on Dr. B. F. Bradbury to tell of some of his experiences while in Europe.

Dr. Bradbury told in a very interesting and entertaining manner many of his experiences during the months that he was in Germany. In opening his remarks he said that as to the war he knew nothing about it only as he had read in papers after they were a month or more old. He sailed from New York in September. On board the Red Cross ship were 30 surgeons and 120 nurses. These were divided into 30 units, of one surgeon and four nurses, each unit being stationed at various places. The supplies were given to the different countries in about 8 car load lots. In regard to the supplies which he presented to Germany he told an interesting story. He met the officials and told them the supplies were from the American Red Cross and gave them to the officials. A few days later he was asked what he informed them the supplies were theirs and his claims had ceased. The same question was asked several times afterward with the same reply. After he was located at the hospital at Cosel when he was informed he was wanted at the door. On reaching the entrance there was a crowd of people and he was told to go to the supplies. Then came the familiar question, "What do you want done with your supplies?" "Put them in the attic," came the reply, feeling it no use to further explain, and they came in very useful as time passed.

The first signs of war that were seen, were in the English channel, when five English soldiers' bodies were seen floating at the side of the ship. A large number of black torpedo boats were passing back and forth.

Clinton is NOT a big city. It's only one of hundreds of places where even a bigger demand exists all the time.

The reason? "L. F." Atwood's Medicine, for over 60 years, has afforded relief from stomach troubles, biliousness, constipation and liver complaints.

At Holland the villages presented a fine clean appearance and were set off distinctly from other countries by its ditches for boundaries. A greater part of the bulbs which are grown in this country come from Holland and is a big industry there.

Dr. Bradbury told of many interesting incidents which happened during his travels in Europe. He was located in Eastern Germany, and his first night at his hotel brought many new experiences before he was able to retire.

In referring to the wounded he said that he had read much about the clean manner in which these new bullets of great speed would pass through the body without shattering, but it was absolutely false, the wounds were bad and if the bone was hit it was badly shattered and filled with pus. Regarding dum dum bullets he said that he found not a single case of dum dum bullet in any of the wounded. Sometimes they thought they had found a case, but it was always explained. A ricocheting bullet makes the worst sort of a dum dum wound.

A statement found in the papers here in America is of the cruelty of soldiers of one country to soldiers of the enemy. Here, also I found in every case that came to my notice that this was absolutely false.

A German soldier was wounded and left behind by his companions. The hospital corps soon found him and started to carry him to the camp. Before going for a Russian cavalry charge thundered by. Of a necessity the hospital crew placed the wounded man on the ground. He took his gun, intending to try to defend himself though he was sure of death. The Russians seeing the wounded man in their way parted and went around him like water around a stone, motioning those behind to take care. The wounded German was not even scratched.

H. D. Smith, cashier of National Bank, told of the growth of the bank in the 40 years he has been cashier and that at the present time there is twenty times the amount of business being done than when he first became cashier. He referred to the panics, and advantages of the new federal banking system.

Letters were read from Don C. Seitz of New York and F. J. Thompson of Haverhill, Mass., expressing their regrets that they could not be present at the banquet.

L. M. Carroll of the Carroll-Jellison Peabody Shoe Co., was called on and said that he was a little less than a year ago that the firm began business here. He said that they are well satisfied with the manner in which they have been received by the town's people and while under the present circumstances they have not done as large a business as they hoped to do, they have increased since beginning and the future looks bright.

Rev. Robert J. Bruce on being called on for remarks, said that several times during the past week he had heard it remarked that the speakers of the evening were to be local names, but nothing came of his speaking until after supper. He referred to the various kinds of business in town and said when he talked with the different proprietors they talked of their business and as religion was his business he felt it his privilege to speak on religion. He referred to what is being said by some men, that religion is going to the poor wows, which is false. It has stood the test of ages and it needs each man's support with a firm faith in one's self, his neighbor and in God.

Hon. A. S. Kimball told of his long and pleasant association with the people of Norway and spoke of his interests in the board of trade. The board of trade has done a great deal in inducing business enterprises to locate in Norway. He believed it a good thing for the board to get together in occasions of this kind, even oftener than in the past, as it promotes harmony and the improvement to the organization and the town.

How to get onto the pond was the query. Happy thought, Ralph McAllister happened along with his double-runner, when Dick thought to slide over the thin ice. Seated alone, as his friend being of rather a corpulent build, watched the operations. With a 15 ft. coast down to said ice while gliding forth, when crack, and po, poor Dick was indeed in it. The ice had broken through on all sides and poor Dickie was slowly becoming chilled. However, with great presence of mind he arose and rescued the double runner, then started for shore. WEST PARIS.

Rev. Seth Benson.

Rev. Seth Benson, whose death was reported last week, had been very poorly for several months and had previously had several severe attacks of indigestion and heart trouble, the last one occurring

while at the funeral of Mrs. America

Andrews, reported a few weeks ago. He had begun to feel quite like himself and to do some light chores. On Monday he remained well he was feeling, and did a little wood splitting and it was thought that he took cold doing it while standing out in the snow. That night he was taken sick and grew worse throughout the day and Tuesday night was called critically ill and died a little after one o'clock Wednesday morning, Feb. 24th, of pneumonia.

Mr. Benson was among the older children of a family of eleven of Deacon

Gibbs and Lucinda Benson of North

Paris, and was born Aug. 23, 1836. Of those who survive here are Mrs. J. J.

Tubbs of Los Angeles, Calif.; Adelia, wife of J. R. Tucker of West Paris;

Kate, wife of Benj. Doe of Paris Hill;

Abbie, wife of Fred Lowe of North

Paris, Me.; wife of Burrey Field of South Paris; Gibbs Z. Benson of New

Gloucester and Emma, wife of the late

Frank Barrett, of East Sumner. Mr.

Benson married Charlotte Chase, who died about 1880. To them were born five children, three of whom died in infancy. Two daughters, Ella, wife of Alpheus D. Andrews of North Paris, and Lidia, wife of Charles N. Perkins of Waterford survive him, also six grandchildren. April 5th, 1883, he married

Hannah Emmons, who died in the fall of 1908. To them were born twelve young ladies. Seth, who died at the age of three, was a great grief and disappointment.

Three homeless boys were at different times brought up in his home. The first was Joseph Crosswell, then Eugene

Millet, now a man of property and estimate of Readfield, and Samuel R. Johnson, who is one of our blacksmiths and well known in this vicinity. All of these boys were taken in when quite small and made as one of the family until grown to manhood.

Mr. Benson was educated in the common schools and at Hebron Academy.

He taught over 40 terms of school, principally in the winter when large boys attended, and was sought after for his excellent teaching. At one time he taught the Presque Isle school, of 80 pupils, many of whom were rough sailor boys but there as everywhere else he "won out" with his quiet dignified, yet winning manner, securing the confidence and respect of them all. His success as a teacher was so well known that when his younger daughter, Lidia, applied for a certificate to teach, the superintendent wrote these words across her examination paper: "Blood will tell."

When over forty years old he felt called to the service of the Baptist

Mrs. D. A. Grover accompanied all on

After the closing business, by request, Al. Morse of South Paris gave the reading, "The Jiners." And all went home satisfied with the day's full enjoyment. The next Pomona meeting will be held in Bethel.

Mrs. G. A. Smith is sick again. Mr.

Smith is improving and will soon be out again.

Mrs. Thos. Daniel, who has been staying with her uncle and aunt, Dr. and Mrs. O. K. Yates, for the last year and a quarter, started for her home in Mineapolis, Minn., Monday. She will visit with her sisters in Auburn and Lewiston, for a few weeks, also in Boston before going on. She will return here again after she has made a good visit at her home or when they may send for her.

Harold Dunham has moved his goods to Dixfield and he and his wife expect to go by the first of next month, where he will go into partnership with his brother Clifton.

Dr. O. K. Yates got tipped out of his sleigh Sunday, but no damage done particularly. The horse was caught a few rods farther on and he was picked up, got in his own sleigh and drove on to Tuelly, where he was taken to the hospital.

The sleigh was damaged, but Tuesday, on account of a cold and the recent shaking up, he remained in bed the greater part of the day. They have Mrs. Woodis working for them.

Entertainment at Centennial Hall

last week, Wednesday night, given by

O. E. S., for the benefit of the Belgians, was very nice and enjoyable. The musical program before the play consisted of piano duets by Alice Barden and Mrs.

Shurtlett and Edith Gardner. Two vocal solos, also piano solos by Alice

Barden. A ladies' quartette sang

"The Forget-Me-Not," with an encore, by the four teachers. Two or three readings by Mrs. Wood and the comedy in three acts, "Maidens All Forlorn,"

were the following cast:

Emma W. Mann

Visiting niece.

Mrs. J. E. Brock, Mrs. L. H. Penley, Mrs.

Dr. Joslyn Tanney.

Mrs. F. E. Wheeler

The play was very prettily done and quite laughable. The closing tableau,

"Daybreak," which was the very artistic posing of ten or twelve young ladies dressed in white or light dresses, served holding up a Daybreak rose, at which they were all looking. Mrs. J. F. Wood coached the play and posed the tableau, which explains the success of both.

Mr. Wood is very excellent in declamation and stage effect and the majority of our people do not think they can speak, play or act a song at their best unless she can first give them some instructions.

Although it was a very rainy bad night

they cleared the entertainment, ice cream and candy, and the dance which followed under the auspices of the D. A.

C. Club, a sum amounting to over $22.

Peanut Roaster Exploded.

Fire in the basement of the Rumford candy kitchen in Mechanic Institute building Monday afternoon damaged the building $6,000. The loss is covered by insurance. The loss to the stock and fixtures of the candy kitchen was $2,500.

The fire was caused by an explosion of a peanut roaster.
